Subject: Climate friendly building codes

I encourage the SBCC to adopt new building codes that specify the use of electric heat pumps for heat and hot water. As a retired physician living in Olympia I have become increasingly concerned about the myriad and worsening effects of climate change on our health. Changing the way we heat our new buildings is a relatively painless way to begin weaning off climate changing gases. I would be proud to see Washington State be a leader in this effort and I highly encourage you to adopt these changes.

Thanks for your consideration,
